Subject: microsoft ruling

To whom it may concern:

As a tax payer and believer in fair trade, I am furious by the jello backbone our justice system has displayed. Finally there was something that was going to be done to help consumers and the DOJ caved in. How much did Bill Gates donate to the Rublican party?

Small and start up companies do not have a chance because of the heroin like addiction that Micro$oft has on the market. I am not opposed to buying micro$oft products if they are superior; however, most of the time they are not. The are known bugs in the operating system and products which causes consumers the have to buy the newest ones to fix the garbage that they bought in the first place.

My only hope left is that the courts will not accept this ruling, and the Europeans will be stronger than our own justice system.

Sincerely,

Troy Sullivan
A concerned tax payer
